RESEARCH

Research Interests: General research interests include developmental psychopathology, evidence-based diagnostic assessment of psychiatric comorbidity, and development of effective prevention and intervention programs to support individuals with special needs and maximize quality of life. My primary area of focus is co-occurrence of anxiety and other problems of emotion regulation in autism spectrum disorders. I conduct research on the assessment and treatment of mental health problems and establishing evidence-based transition services for people with autism spectrum disorder. I maintain a broad research interest in the identification of transdiagnostic processes underlying comorbidity, or co-occurrence of symptoms of different disorders.
